

Governor Carney Announces Nomination of Meghan Adams as Superior Court Judge

Adams' nomination must be approved by the Delaware Senate

DOVER, Del. – Governor John Carney on Wednesday announced his intention to nominate Delaware attorney Meghan Adams as a Superior Court Judge in New Castle County.

The Delaware Senate is expected to consider the Governor's nomination of Adams this month.

"I am pleased to nominate Meghan, whose experience, judgment and temperament would serve our state well on the Superior Court," said Governor Carney. "I look forward to the Senate considering her nomination."

Since July 2014, Adams has practiced at the Delaware law firm Morris James LLP, where her focus is on corporate and commercial litigation in the Delaware Court of Chancery, the Delaware Superior Court, the Delaware Supreme Court, and the U.S. District of Delaware. Previously, Adams was associated with Proctor Heyman, and Chimicles & Tikellis.

A graduate of Dover High School, Adams earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Adams earned her law degree from the Delaware Law School at Widener University.
